Extreme Networks Appoints Frank Yoshino as Vice President of Treasury and Investor Relations

SAN JOSE, Calif., Dec. 2, 2014 /PRNewswire/ -- Extreme Networks, Inc. (NASDAQ: EXTR), a leader in high performance networking, today announced the appointment of Frank Yoshino to the position of vice president of treasury and investor relations, where he will oversee the company's investor communications strategy, and treasury and risk management functions.

Yoshino has over 20 years of experience in investor relations practices, treasury and corporate finance, including successful tenures at Emulex and MTI, where he developed and implemented corporate IR strategies, including corporate messaging, positioning, investor/analyst communications, education and competitive market analysis. Yoshino also has extensive experience in cash management, corporate financings and repurchases, risk management and M&A integration.

"Frank brings to Extreme an extensive resume with measurable results, having overseen investor relations and corporate finance for key technology players," said Ken Arola, senior vice president and CFO at Extreme Networks. "As Extreme further positions itself in key enterprise and data center markets, Frank will be of tremendous value to our shareholders and employees."

"Extreme Networks is transitioning and building itself into a leader and this requires consistent communication to investors, analysts and customers," said Yoshino. "By joining this experienced management team, I am looking forward to this rewarding opportunity and meeting this challenge."
