Extreme Networks Promotes Frank Blohm To Senior Vice President Of Services, Operations, Quality And IT

SANTA CLARA, Calif., Sept. 10, 2012 /PRNewswire/ -- Extreme Networks, Inc. (Nasdaq: EXTR) today announced that it has promoted Frank Blohm to the position of Senior Vice President of Customer Service, Operations, Quality and IT.

Blohm is a twenty year veteran of the high technology industry and for the last decade has provided Extreme Networks with leadership for its worldwide operations in his role as vice president of operations and chief quality officer. As senior vice president, Blohm now gains responsibility for worldwide customer service and support, and information technology.

"Frank has achieved measurable results leading our quality organization and global operations, making the addition of global customer service and IT a natural progression that takes advantage of his unique blend of skills," said Oscar Rodriguez, president and CEO of Extreme Networks.

"Meeting our vision as a network technology leader means delivering high quality products and a terrific experience for users," said Blohm. "In my new role, I have the opportunity to bring together teams focused on quality systems, products, services, and information technology towards our ultimate goal of increasing customer satisfaction."
