

Extreme Networks to Present on Data Center Energy Efficiency at Data Center Dynamics Conference and Expo

SANTA CLARA, CA, Feb 23, 2010 (MARKETWIRE via COMTEX News Network) -- Extreme Networks, Inc. (NASDAQ: EXTR) today announced its participation in the education portion at the upcoming Data Center Dynamics Conference and Expo, a conference featuring the latest innovations in data center design, to be held March 3rd, at the Hilton New York.

Extreme Networks will participate in the following Data Center Dynamics session:

-- Wednesday, March 3 at 11:40 p.m. ET: Kevin Ryan, Director of Data Center Solutions, will present on the network infrastructure and power management in the data center.

The growth of compute power and consolidation of data center equipment, coupled with rising energy prices and mounting pressures to reduce carbon emissions, means that energy efficiency in the data center has become a chief concern of data center planners and network operators. During the session, Mr. Ryan will address the increasingly vital role that energy efficiency, including static and dynamic device management, plays in data center design and the underlying Ethernet network architecture.
